Werner Herzog made his first film in 1961. Since then he has produced, written, and directed more than fifty feature and documentary films and directed a dozen operas. He has been nominated and won numerous international awards for his films, including an Academy Award, a Golden Globe, a BAFTA Award, four Cannes Palm d'Or Awards, two Independent Spirit Awards, a Sundance Film Festival Award, four Venice Film Festival Awards, an Emmy, and two Berlin International Film Festival Awards.

He became a celebrated director in the US as a member of the New German Cinema film movement with his films Aguirre, Wrath of God, Nosferatu the Vampyre, and Fitzcarraldo. His recent films include Grizzly Man, The Bad Lieutenant: Port of Call-New Orleans, Encounters at the End of the World, Rescue Dawn, and Cave of Forgotten Dreams.

His latest film Into the Abyss, a documentary about two death row inmates in Texas, was screened recently at the Telluride and Toronto International Film Festivals and will soon receive a wide release in the US.
